Bloom's Character

Bloom is a middle-aged Jewish advertising salesman who lives in Dublin, Ireland. He is married to Molly Bloom, and they have one child, Rudy. Bloom is a kind and compassionate man, but he is also deeply alienated from himself and from the world around him.

Bloom's alienation is due in part to his Jewishness. He is a member of a minority group that has been persecuted and marginalized throughout history. This has led Bloom to feel like an outsider in his own country.

Bloom's alienation is also due to his personality. He is a sensitive and introspective man who is constantly questioning his own identity and his place in the world. This makes it difficult for him to connect with others.

Despite his alienation, Bloom is a deeply human and sympathetic character. He is a man who is trying to make sense of a complex and confusing world. He is a man who is searching for connection and meaning. He is a man who is ultimately worthy of our compassion and understanding.
