Through vivid descriptions and insightful research, Carter transports readers to places that have slipped off the tourist radar. From ancient cities lost in time to remote villages untouched by modernity, she paints a vivid picture of destinations that have remained largely unchanged for centuries.

Beyond the Beaten Path

Back On The Map is not just a travelogue; it's a celebration of diversity and resilience. Carter encounters forgotten cultures, witnesses ancient traditions, and unearths the stories of people whose lives have been shaped by the passage of time.

She explores the ruins of once-mighty empires in Syria, where she delves into the history of the ancient city of Palmyra. In the mountains of Georgia, she discovers the hidden monasteries of the Caucasus, where centuries-old frescoes adorn the crumbling walls.

A Window into the Past

Through Carter's evocative writing, Back On The Map becomes a window into the past. She unearths the forgotten histories of places like the abandoned city of Angkor in Cambodia, once the largest urban center in the world. In the remote highlands of Ethiopia, she discovers the ancient churches of Lalibela, carved into the living rock.

Carter's keen eye for detail and her ability to capture the spirit of a place make Back On The Map an immersive reading experience. She brings to life forgotten civilizations, allowing readers to experience the grandeur of the past through her words.

A Call to Exploration

Back On The Map is more than a book; it's a call to exploration. Carter's journey inspires us to look beyond the familiar and seek out the hidden gems that lie just off the beaten path. She reminds us that true travel is about more than ticking off a list of destinations; it's about immersing ourselves in different cultures, discovering the unexpected, and appreciating the beauty of the unknown.

Whether you're an armchair traveler or an intrepid adventurer, Back On The Map is an essential read. It will ignite your wanderlust, broaden your horizons, and forever change the way you look at the world.
