Are you ready to learn the secrets of weft faced and tapestry weaving? This comprehensive beginner's guide will teach you everything you need to know to get started with these beautiful and versatile weaving techniques.

What is weft faced weaving?

Weft faced weaving is a type of weaving in which the weft (the horizontal threads) are more visible than the warp (the vertical threads). This creates a fabric with a textured, raised surface.

Weft faced weaving can be used to create a wide variety of fabrics, from sturdy rugs and blankets to delicate scarves and shawls. It is a versatile technique that can be used to create both functional and decorative pieces.

What is tapestry weaving?

Tapestry weaving is a type of weaving in which the weft threads are used to create images or designs. The weft threads are typically dyed in a variety of colors, and they are woven together to create a picture.

Tapestry weaving can be used to create a wide variety of art pieces, from small wall hangings to large-scale murals. It is a time-consuming technique, but the results can be stunning.
